What is different about this job from others is the fact that it doesn't feel like you're working for a corporation. You don't feel like you're just another brick in the wall. Every person here is very different and we all respect each other. That's a real plus about working here. Not a lot of people can say that they go to work and they're happy to be there.

In other jobs, there is a lot of pressure to do your job right. I don't feel that here. If you do get overwhelmed, there are different people that can help you out in any way that they can. We're a family, and like most families, we are more than happy to step in to help someone else out.

Ours is a small staff, but like everyone else has said, we're a family, so it's great. You don't get a lot of turnover. A lot of people have been here for a while and you get to know everybody, which adds more to the feeling of a family.

I like the fact that our opinions matter here as well. I think that's most important, because I feel like other places that I've worked, your job is your own and if you have a problem, it's your problem and you can't look to anybody else to help you with that, which can be very frustrating.

You don't get that here. Everyone who works here, and our managers, are patient and understanding. I do like that.

I'm not a part owner yet, but the potential of being a part owner, is just like when you have something that's yours, it makes you want to take care of it and put a lot of your dedication and time into it.

It's very special that everybody has their hands and hearts in this place. I have done a lot of growing with this place, I've learned a lot. I want to stay with this place, just like you would want to stay somewhere where you're comfortable and feel like you matter.

You want this to be a reflection of yourself, you want people to see this reflection, to feel welcome here, because you want to feel welcome and we all feel that way when we come to work here.
