

Marcus

[translated from Spanish]

This is a very giving place. If you compare to other places, this is the best of any other job I've ever had. You don't need somebody behind you to push you to do your job. That happens a lot in other places. I don't know why the managers do that.

This place gives you a chance to be yourself and you are freer to enjoy yourself. If you want to drink some coffee for example, or spend some time talking to another employee or guest, you can do it, and nobody says anything. In this place, you get to enjoy the group.

It's a very good feeling which is why we all want to do a good job and to be there for each other.

There have been some ups and downs over the years, but the Tabard Inn has always stood firm. Other jobs fall apart, but it hasn't here. That's because of the strength of the organization which, how could I say, is more structured around the people who work here.

The salary structure has been maintained for years and, as others have said, it is a place where one can grow and step up career wise. That is what has made it so good for me and why I have been here for many, many years. It is a place that gives one the opportunity to grow.

We spend almost half of our time working, so it is important to feel good about where we work. I love this place. That is what makes me keep working hard and keep going.

I feel committed to the Tabard because it is the place where for many years, thanks to the work I have had, I been able to move forward in my life and how I have supported my family.

When I come here, I feel committed to give everything of myself that I have to give, so that this place can move forward, because it is THIS place, a special place.

As everyone else has said about the loss we'd feel if the Tabard Inn was to close, is we'd be heartbroken.

We will lose everything if the Tabard was ever to close, not just our jobs and our security, but the feeling we have of belonging, of being a part of a family, which includes all the people who work with us, as well as all the people who come here and who enjoy themselves and tell us how much they enjoy themselves.

What you feel here in the hotel every day is something. It is like a home. It is a home where you are welcomed the moment you come in, which makes you feel like you are leaving one home to come to another home.

